

WASHINGTON HIGHLANDS DON'T READ THIS!

Unless You Wish to Double Your Money.

MR. INVESTOR:—We wish to bring to attention a Real Estate proposition which is altogether different, far more conservative than any other proposition ever advertised and as sure to increase in value as these United States is to increase in population, because the increase of population in this country acts directly upon this city, which in the next ten years will far surpass any in the world for magnificence in Buildings, Parks, Streets and Boulevards.

This City is WASHINGTON, D. C., the seat of Government of the greatest and wealthiest country in the world.

SOME THINGS ABOUT WASHINGTON, D. C., YOU PROBABLY DO NOT KNOW.

Washington, D. C., is but 8 miles square and will never be any larger in area than it is now. There are 49 square miles of ground in the entire District of Columbia and the Government owns more than one-half of that.

We will sell you a lot in Washington Highlands located in South East Washington for $210.00, $20.00 cash and the balance at the rate of $5.00 per month.

With 90 foot streets, 15 foot rear alleys, Fire and Police Protection, Water, Sewerage and Gas, within four minutes walk of the Nichols Avenue trolley line while three more trolley lines have secured franchises to build in this same section.

WATER WORKS AND SEWERAGE.

Congress has passed a law that any subdivision in the District of Columbia having as many as six houses is entitled to Water Works and Sewerage.

We are now 20 minutes from the Capitol Building but the bridge allowed by Congress to be built at once will put us 10 minutes from the Capitol and business section.

The price of $210.00 per lot means but 7½¢ per square foot while thousands of lots in North West property which do not lay nearly so well as Washington Highlands have sold and are selling for 50¢ to $5.00 per square foot.

As you can see this means that the man of moderate means is forced to buy in other parts of the city.

Washington Highlands being the best located property of any in the District, we can truthfully say that it will triple in 5 years and in 10 years quadruple.

Now do not think that the above assertion is not a conservative one, for all you have to do is use your own common sense.

Look at this, Washington has a population of 356,000 now according to the official census. Washington increased nearly 100,000 in the past 10 years.

Statistics show that the Government owns more than half of the 49 square miles in the District and there will be 500,000 people living on 20 square miles not owned by the Government within the next 10 years.

Think, Mr. Investor, what an enormous increase this means in the value of Washington Real Estate.

The Government is buying more property in Washington all the time. They recently bought the south side of Pennsylvania Avenue, from 7th street to Capitol Park in order to do away with some undesirable looking business houses and incidentally to add to the beauty of Capitol Park.

This cost the Government millions and the taxpayers of Washington do not have to pay a cent for that, as it is Government property.

You do not find this in any other City in the World. Millions of dollars worth of city property being bought in order to beautify a city, and the Government is spending MILLIONS OF MONEY TO MAKE WASHINGTON THE MOST BEAUTI-FUL AND IMPRESSIVE CAPITAL IN THE WORLD.

We offer you property in Washington today for $210.00 that you cannot buy in 10 years for $1,000.00.

WASHINGTON THE CITY THAT IS FORCED TO GROW BY LAW. Every million people added to the United States means so many more Government employees in Washington.

We do not exaggerate when we predict enormous increase in values in the City of Washington because the last 10 years will show that it has done as well in the past as we predict in the future.

This is by far the most conservative Real Estate proposition offered in recent years; for YOU CAN NOT POSSIBLY LOSE YOU MUST MAKE MONEY.

WE ARE GOING TO SELL EVERY LOT IN 30 DAYS. THIS IS NO EXAGGERATION. Washington Highlands is going fast because we have 30 salesmen in different parts of the country selling our Washington Real Estate (aside from our "Mail Order" business) and the enormous amount we sell makes us satisfied with small profits and enables us to turn our money over several times each year, otherwise we would hold the property ourselves and make the profit.

REMEMBER WE SELL FAST AT CLOSE PRICES. BUY NOW for every thing we tell you WE GUARANTEE to be exactly right or your money refunded.

FINAL ADVICE: If you can afford to make a purchase, write us and we will send you a plat of the lots. If you cannot, then forget you have saw this ad, for if you don't either write or forget WASHINGTON HIGHLANDS will be another "Might Have Been" to trouble your future peace.

FRIDAY EVENING, SEP. 30, 1910.

THE FIERY CROSS AND THE NEW BOSSISM.

Billie Brennan's Fiery Cross, which was given up for lost in the wilderness, has made its appearance in Philadelphia. Through the thick woods of stern partisanship which lie between the western and the eastern slopes of the Allegheny mountains, the hot and glowing symbol of confederated war has been hidden from sight, but once within the Quaker City, where politics are never neutral, its last sparks lit up a little conflagration which poses as the Light of Liberty.

A small coterie of Philadelphia capitalists joined in a demand that both Candidate Berry and Candidate Grinn withdraw, and that the Keystone and the Democratic parties unite in the nomination of a fusion ticket. It is proposed by the Hon. William J. Brennan of Allegheny county and his suspected silent partner, Hon. Ernest P. Acheson of Washington county.

Candidate Berry expresses a willingness to withdraw if the Keystone Campaign Committee shall desire him to do so, but he makes an earnest argument against such action. He says he has the fight against both bosses won; that the Philadelphia demand comes from a self-appointed committee; and that he was nominated by "an untrammelled convention of unbossed men." He overlooks the fact that the delegates to this convention were also self-appointed, but he is warranted in assuming that they represented some measure of public sentiment.

Candidate Grinn declares emphatically that he will not withdraw. Such an act, he says, is further from his purpose. He feels confident, he is implying every day. He might have added further, that he was nominated by a State Convention of Democratic delegates chosen by the voters at the primary polls, and that he is under no obligation to resign the banner placed in his hands by the rank and file of his party at the best or on the demand of a Junta of Divas with self-made halos bound upon their brows. He might have added, that his nomination was a triumph for his party, and that he was nominated by a State Convention of Democratic delegates chosen by the voters at the primary polls, and that he is under no obligation to resign the banner placed in his hands by the rank and file of his party at the best or on the demand of a Junta of Divas with self-made halos bound upon their brows.

We have heard a great deal about Bosses in this campaign, and some of our contemporaries have advanced so far in the study of this political microbe as to be able to classify it into Good Bosses and Bad Bosses, but Philadelphia presents a new species which may well be named the Overlord of Organization.

After the Democrats of Pennsylvania have through their delegates chosen by their votes nominated their ticket and promulgated their platform; after the Keystone Party, through its convention composed of self-appointed delegates it is true, but delegates representing the sentiments of that party throughout the State, have done likewise; in short, after the people have spoken, shall it be the right and privilege of a handful of hollers-than-thous to cast aside tickets and platforms, set a new ticket and a new faith before all this multitude and cry out in a loud voice commanding them to bow down and worship their handwork?

The Fiery Cross is the symbol of a new and greater Bossism.

THE DANGERS OF INDIAN CREEK TYPHOID.

The increasing number of typhoid fever cases along the banks of Indian creek, a tributary to the Youghiogheny river from which Conneltsville draws a large portion of its water used for domestic purposes, causes some natural apprehension of the contamination of the river, the wholesale pollution of our water supply and a resultant deadly plague among our people.

The danger is not as remote as it looks to the careless and thoughtless. It is easy to lay down restrictive rules concerning the disposition of typhoid excretions, but it is difficult to enforce them, especially in sparsely settled districts. The public health of Conneltsville depends in a large measure upon how the typhoid cases on the watersheds of the Youghiogheny river are handled.

It is not enough for the local health authorities to say, "Boil the water!" It ought not to be necessary for Conneltsville people to boil the water. The primary cause should be guarded against. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." If the water mains of Conneltsville become the abiding place of fever germs, we will be compelled to boil the water, not only this month, but for many months. Our safety we may never know.

Uncle Sam—When them blamed kids get to scrapping I just can't take interest in anything until they get through.

The Board of Health, either through its own officers or with the assistance of the agents of the State Health Department, should vigilantly guard the people of Conneltsville from this grave danger. It is a solemn obligation they have assumed, and they should meet it earnestly and sincerely, sparing no necessary effort or expense in the performance of this duty.

THE WORLD-WIDE FAME OF CONNELLSVILLE. Conneltsville had the honor of a visit from the Sultan of Sulu last evening. The Sultan may converse with his wives and his ministers, but he was not very communicative with Conneltsville folks.

He didn't ask about the quality of our water, nor the High School specifications, nor the population of the town. He evinced no particular interest in the Western Maryland railroad, nor in our new industries, nor did he offer to locate here himself. He didn't inquire about the price of milk, nor the weight of coal, nor the cost of ice. He didn't ask the whereabouts of Uniontown, or Brownsville or Masontown.

But he did express a lively interest in seeing a string of Conneltsville coke ovens in blast, and his wish was gratified shortly after the train pulled out. It is recorded that the Sultan was asleep at Pittsburgh. He was evidently satisfied after seeing Conneltsville and its coke ovens.

The incident is not without its moral. It shows how far around the world the name of Conneltsville has traveled.

The Illinois Central car repair graft is a sample of one of the undesirable fixed charges of railroad operation.

Chestnuts! Affluence is expensive in Butler county. A man wants $10,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections.

Fayette county can and should contribute liberally to the Pennsylvania State Museum.

The profits of the coke business do not seem to be attractive to all stockholders in coke companies.

BOARD SUSTAINS ARCHITECT.

"Suppose the specifications call for a certain kind of rail, and a certain size? How about that?" asked Baisley.

"The contractor should pay no attention to that. Details take precedence. The first plan we lay out the general lines; we have no time to bother with details. They are reserved to be worked out later. We make the specifications broad enough to allow for changes in detailed plans."

"Do you mean to say you go ahead with these details and never consult the builder?"

"Certainly not. We would never consult you for a moment. We would not more consult you about the balance of the matter than we would the architect."

"How about the stair horses?" asked Dr. Gallagher.

"Hal! Hal!" burst from the lips of the architect. "You must give your contractor credit for those. He puts up a reinforced horse. In other words, where 2x12 is called for, he gives you a 3x12. He has it stronger than necessary. That is an advantage; not a detriment."

"You say it is stronger," asked Baisley.

"We know it is," was the response. Asked about giving the wedges, the architect said:

"The clause requiring gluing the wedges is simply the typical form for specifications. That is put in practically all of them. Usually stairways are built at the factory and there they always glue them, so we stick that requirement in. The contractor here has accomplished the same result by nailing the wedges."

"Does that cost more or less?" was asked.

"The cost is the same; more if anything. It takes more time to nail the wedges than to glue them."

At this point President Gallagher hurried matters along. "How about the concrete?" he asked.

"Strictly according to the contract," stated the architect. "I examined it very carefully."

"How often did you come here?" asked Baisley.

"Every week," was the reply; "about that, at least."

"A whole lot of things can be covered up in a week," Baisley said.

"They cannot cover up anything in a week we cannot recover in a week's time."

Dr. Gallagher then took up the inquiry. "How about the flooring," he asked. "Best you can buy," was the answer.

"That's not the question," broke in Baisley. "Is it the kind that is called for?"

"It is."

"How about the slate; Old Bangor?"

is called for.

"Just as specified."

Regarding the shotholing for the roof, it was stated that yellow pine was used instead of hemlock. Baisley asked if it was No. 1 yellow pine used. "It's a better grade than hemlock," replied the architect without committing himself on that point.

"How about the window glass?" was asked.

"That is just what is called for. I did not examine every pane, but samples were submitted to me and they came up to the requirements. The samples were absolutely correct."

"What kind of cement was used?" asked Baisley.

"I don't know what kind. That doesn't matter so long as it was Portland cement. It all costs the same and the tests are the same. There is no difference between the grades."

Baisley thought there was a difference in the price but McCollum insisted that it would not be more than a few cents on every barrel. Crescent cement was used.

"That's a western cement, isn't it?" inquired Baisley.

"I don't know," replied McCollum. The matter of cement over the sheet iron coverings of the foul air ducts was not questioned, Baisley having merely asked for information on that point during the inspection a week or so ago. Possibly this was the reason there was no attempt made to interrupt the discussion over this point. There was considerable talk about this which did not bring out anything, as it was not expected to.

Baisley then asked for the contract with the architect. A copy was not on hand, Secretary Thomas reporting that it is "locked up down in the vault." Baisley said it ought to be on hand just to see what the board really is paying for.

"Mr. McCollum, on your word of honor as an architect, on your reputation as an architect," began Dr. Gallagher. "Do you think this building is up to the specifications and that there have been no deviations that are not as good or better than the original plans? Think before you answer."

"I don't have to think," replied the architect. "The building, up to the present time, is a substantial compliance to the contract and to the plans and specifications. That is as far as anyone can go. I cannot go farther than that and no one else can. No building is perfect. But it is a substantial compliance in every respect except for time. The building was not completed on time."

Director Baisley said: "I called the Board's attention to matters that I thought important. Several minor things I ignored. I will think those matters are important. I have some matters, in the nature of confidential correspondence, that I cannot reveal at this time."

Dr. D. B. Edie asked President Gallagher whether the architect could make changes from the original plans and specifications, the president having stated at a previous meeting that he believed this was not permissible.

Dr. Gallagher replied that details are made after the plans are adopted.

"Mr. McCollum, does the contractor have your written consent to these changes?"

"There was no writing about it," replied the architect. "There has been no change to affect the building or its stability."

"There was a painful silence following Dr. Gallagher's request for an expression of the board's pleasure. Finally Director J. A. Mason moved that the board express its entire satisfaction with the work and material in the building to date. Director W. W. Smith seconded the motion.

"Any remarks?" asked the President.

"How about the rebates?" If that place has been split we ought to know about it," said Director R. O. Thomas.

"I am sure I didn't split it," said Baisley. "That's the way I picked it up off the floor its up there, you can see for yourselves."

"Gentlemen, you are out of order, there is a motion before the house," admonished the President. "There was a number of protest at this, but finally the vote was called. Adjournment quickly followed. The Board was in session less than 40 minutes."

The Rational Treatment for Eczema.

The day of the use of salves and ointments in the treatment of eczema and other skin and scalp diseases is done. Time has proved them not only practically useless in effecting permanent cures, but also unclean and in reality, breeding places for the disease germs.

ALL IS READY AT DAWSON FOR FREE BRIDGE CELEBRATION.

Whole Yough Country Will Turn Out Tomorrow Afternoon in Parade and Jubilation.

WEATHER MAN WILL BE GOOD

According to Today's Report and That is All That is Needed to Assure Big Success—Many Will Go From Connellsville.

Tomorrow afternoon Dawson, Dickerson Run and Vanderbilt will unite in celebrating the freeing of the Dawson bridge. There will be a parade and speeches, at which time the ownership of the bridge will be transferred from the Dawson Bridge Company to the County Commissioners of Fayette county. Today the decorations are going up at the business places in the three towns and before night they will take on a new appearance. Flags have been ordered by the hundreds and bunting by the scores of yards.

Tomorrow morning the country people from miles around will begin drifting into town. All the townships about will send representatives to the big doings. Dawson tomorrow will have more attractions for the country folks than a county fair.

The various committees took their seats off this morning and started in with a vengeance to wind up matters that have been left until the last. The executive committee then called in to see that the others were on the job. It has been a strenuous week for the executive committee. When not stirring up interest among the business men the members were busy getting after laggard committeemen. There were few of these, however.

The Perryopolis Cornet Band and the Jackson Martial Band will arrive in Dawson on the 3:30 train tomorrow morning. This will be, in a sense, the advance guard. The bands will make music throughout the morning. Towards noon there will be a concerted movement towards Vanderbilt, where the parade starts. The parade will form at the corner of Main and Fourth streets, the school children assembling on both streets. The railroad trainmen, who will act as a body-guard for the school children, will follow immediately in the rear. The automobiles bearing the invited guests and other distinguished visitors will rest on Main street, Vanderbilt, following in behind the railroads. The Perryopolis Cornet Band will lead the school children. The Jackson Martial Band will fall in behind the automobiles. It will lead the Red Men and other fraternal orders, who will rest on South Main street until the parade starts.

The industrial floats and carriages will rest on McFarland street, prepared to follow the fraternal organizations. The forces of Brown & Cochran, with floats, will rest on the Perryopolis road prepared to follow the floats and carriages in the parade. The forces of W. J. Halsey will form on the Uniontown road.

At 1 to P. M. Grand Martial George M. Strickler will sound the advance and the parade will move towards the State road. Following this, the parade will go through Liberty and Dickerson Run, thence across the bridge into Dawson. In Dawson the line of march is up Bridge street to Railroad street, down Railroad to Main, up Main to Howell, out Howell to Dawson school, where the Dawson school children will disband. The Vanderbilt and Liberty school children will continue back across the bridge to their respective buildings. The balance of the parade will disband on the side streets north of Railroad street.

It is expected to have a parade fully a mile long. The school children will be held together in classes by the use of bunting. The aides will be delegated with special instructions to guard the safety of the youngsters at all hazards. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has been requested to stop and traffic through Dawson during the parade. Four of Dawson's oldest citizens will be given a carriage in the parade. They are James Moser, Anthony King, F. P. Newmyer, and William Fairchild. The floats will be out of the ordinary. Otto Hans has prepared one to represent the "Happy Hunting Ground." Brown & Cochran will have one to line drawn by 20 horses. Other floats to be represented by floats are the Dawson Supply Company, George McGill, Charles S. Worthington, W. J. Bossett, Frank P. Stichel, the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Shops, Isaac Cochran, J. C. Stauffer, Luxner & Smith, A. D. Blair, J. E. Black, George Newmyer & Son, Stayman & Morris, J. W. Gwinn, M. M. Paul, J. B. Henderson, W. E. Gray, John McFarland, James S. Langhrey and the Ogilvie & McClure Lumber Company.

Following the parade there will be exercises from the grand stand near the bridge, on the Dawson side. Seats on the stand will be occupied by officials of the Dawson Bridge Company, county officers, the viewers who passed on the bridge and members of the Grand Jury who approved the view. President M. M. Cochran of the bridge company will formally turn over possession to the Commissioners of Fayette county. There will be several speeches. The exercises at the bridge will conclude the official celebration.
